

THE DECLARATION

To respond to the appeal of Pope John Paul II, who asked the people of Poland to “oppose everything that conflicts with human dignity and degrades the morals of a healthy society, that may sometimes threaten its very existence and the common good” (23 Oct. 1978)

I hereby join the Crusade for Human Liberation.

I am doing it in the spirit of responsibility for the common good of our nation. I am convinced that by this act, I may offer help to those who thirst to get liberated from their internal and external addictions.

I declare that I will not drink any alcoholic beverages.

It is my free decision.

I also resolve:

- not to serve any alcoholic beverages,
- not to spend any money on alcoholic beverages,
- to participate, when and if possible, in the meetings and activities to which I will be invited by the agency of the Crusade for Human Liberation nearest to my place of living.

PRAYER

Mary Immaculate, Mother of the Church, you are for us the model of a person fully redeemed and free and thus infinitely devoted in love to Christ in the Holy Spirit. When we fix our eyes on you, we realize the manifold slaveries which entangle our hearts.

Our deepest desire is to get completely free and to help our brothers and sisters who are awaiting the freedom of the Children of God to appear in them. Thus we approach you, and we give ourselves to you so that with you, by the power of the same Spirit, who worked in you, we can realize more fully our freedom in giving ourselves to Christ and through him to God, the Father.

We entrust our promise of abstinence from alcoholic beverages and our decision to get completely free from them to you so that our freedom may liberate our brothers and sisters, who cannot get free on their own. May this act of love be the act of giving a helping hand and of service to our brothers and sisters, the act in which we want to imitate Christ who, out of love, emptied himself, taking the form of a slave.

We entrust the whole work of the Crusade for Human Liberation to you. We pray that it will become your work and an instrument in your hand to make our nation free.

We want to stand at the foot of the Cross of Christ with you and your dedicated servant Saint John Paul II, and confess that only a union with Christ in love, which is expressed in sacrifice, may set free a life-giving and maternal power for rescuing those who became slaves because they had lost the ability to love, that is to make a sincere gift of oneself.

Saint Stanislaus, Bishop and Martyr, Patron of the Crusade for Human Liberation, inspire us with the courage to give testimony and fortitude in the face of difficulties and persecutions. May we work without fear on rebuilding the moral order in our country.

Saint Maximilian Kolbe, teach us how to love our brothers and sisters at the cost of making a sacrifice of ourselves.

Amen.
